James H. Wilson, Clyde Reich Again School Board Candidates

Six candidates have filed petitions with the Columbiana county board of elections, seeking two jobs as constables in Perry township, it was disclosed today after the board officials had counted a total of 377 candidates.

The deadline for filing in order to qualify for places on the Nov. 2 balloting was Friday night.

Those in the Perry township constable race are George H. Morris and Frank J. Eckstein, incumbents, Harold W. Shepard, Harley D. Pelo, E. Thomas Rice and Lloyd C. Grimes.

4 In Trustee Race

Galen H. Greenstein, filing for a four-year term, is the only newcomer to the Perry township trustee fold. Greenstein, a farmer, will oppose P. J. Dean and R. Clayton Eckstein, incumbents, for the four-year term. Joseph G. Reese is unopposed for the two-year trusteeship.

James H. Wilson and Clyde Reich filed for re-election to the Salem board of education. They apparently will be unopposed.

The elections board termed the number of registrations the "heaviest in years."

Villages too small to participate in the primaries resorted to petitions to nominate candidates. Eight majority candidates include H. D. Cope of Rogers, E. P. Kurtz and W. H. Shanghai Populace Flees Bombs

Looking down on the Garden Bridge in Shanghai, some of the 1,000,000 refugees from the native quarters of the stricken city are shown seeking the comparative safety of the International Settlement. Aerial bombs from both Chinese and Japanese planes have exacted a heavy toll in human lives and property damage.

Flames Roar As Japanese Batter At Chinese Defenses

(By Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Sept. 7.—Roaring flames across all night long lit the path tonight of a fierce Japanese effort to batter down the Chinese resistance that has brought their Shanghai offensive to a standstill.

Naval and heavy artillery guns roared in the Yangtzepoo, Chapel, Kiangwan and north station districts, laying down blankets of shell fire in advance of tremendous Japanese sunset attacks on the Chinese front lines.

Fires spread across the whole area. The commercial press building, rebuilt after the 1932 Sino-Japanese hostilities, was reduced to ashes again after it was struck by three Japanese bombs.

Americans Endangered
With the peril to American and other foreign residents drawing steadily closer from the fighting ringing the international settlement, the American Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai protested Communist President Roosevelt's warning that United States citizens remain in China at their own risk.

The note, addressed to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, expressed "resentment" of American missionaries and business men and urged greater protection of them and their interests.

It was disclosed, meanwhile, that the United States transport Chaumont will assist in further evacuation of American civilian and naval families from the Shanghai war area. The Chaumont is due here Sept. 20, with 1,200 marine reinforcements.

The Chaumont is being conveyed by the United States light cruiser Marblehead. Although later disposition of the Marblehead was not announced, it was believed she would remain in Shanghai as part of the American protective fleet.

The United States submarine tender Canopus will remove American refugees from Tsingtao Sept. 23 and the destroyer tender Black Hawk will evacuate naval families from Chefoo Sept. 30.

Confirms Bombing

On the north new outskirts of firing on the western edge of Tientsin, indicating that regular Chinese troops or Chinese irregulars still are active in the Japanese-dominated area, apparently balked a Japanese offensive against Machang, strategic Chinese stronghold 30 miles south of Tientsin.

On the south, Sir Frederick Maze, British inspector general of Chinese customs, confirmed the deliberate bombing by Japanese planes of two British-occupied customs boats off the city of Ningpo, in Chekiang province, 60 miles from Shanghai.

C.E. GREENAMYER, LEETONIA, DIES IN HOTEL ROOM

Former Loan Co. Official
Is Stricken On Visit

FUNERAL SERVICE TO BE THURSDAY

Had Gone to Pittsburgh
For Weekend Rest, Relatives Say

LEETONIA, Sept. 7.—Carey E. Greenamyer, 65, former secretary-treasurer of the People's Savings and Loan Co., here, died suddenly last night in Pittsburgh following a heart attack.

He was stricken in a Pittsburgh hotel where relatives said he had gone "for a weekend rest."

Mr. Greenamyer was born in Lewistown Feb. 5, 1872, the son of Joshua and Alice Greenamyer. He had lived in Leetonia since he was four years old. He was a member of the Methodist church.

Served Bank 39 Years

After serving as secretary for the People's Savings and Loan bank for 39 years, Mr. Greenamyer resigned two years ago to devote his time to an insurance business he had conducted for 40 years in connection with his duties at the bank. He maintained offices on Walnut st. His son, Edward Greenamyer, was associated in business with him.

He was united in marriage 43 years ago to Mae Burgham, who survives, along with his mother, the son, Edward and one granddaughter.

Private funeral service will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at the home, 152 Elm st., in charge of Rev. C. S. Dopp, pastor of the Methodist church. Burial will be in Oakdale cemetery.

Greenamyer Court Case Wiped From Docket By Death

LISBON, Sept. 7.—The case of the State vs. Carey E. Greenamyer of Leetonia was wiped from the Columbiana county court docket today by death.

Greenamyer, former secretary-treasurer of the Peoples Savings and Loan Co., of Leetonia, died last night following a heart attack in a Pittsburgh hotel where relatives said he had gone "for a weekend rest."

He was under indictment by the grand jury on a charge of abstracting a $5,800 note and embezzling $850 of the bank's money. He had pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Garage Man Flies to Victory In National Air Races

BY DEVON FRANCIS

Associated Press Aviation Editor
CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—A garage man who learned flying the hard way—by starting as a "grease monkey" and working up—held the most prized title in American closed course racing today because he thought fast when a couple of other fellows ran into tough luck.

In the Thompson trophy speed classic, Rudy Kling of Lemont, Ill., divided to a plane-length Labor day victory at a burning pace when first one and then another of the leaders wavered.

A Camera Finish
It was a camera finish for the $20,000 event, closing feature of the national air races. Approximately 200,000 persons saw it, 110,000 in the grandstands and the rest on the surrounding countryside.

Earl Ortman, of Los Angeles, was second, remarked with obvious chagrin as he landed. "I wish I'd known I could have had it. I had the reserve speed."

But only Earl, streaking along a thousand feet in the air, high above his field, knew that Steve

Woman Who Boasted Poisoning Husband Dies In Hospital

LISBON, Sept. 7.—Probate Judge Homer W. Hammond received word today from officials of the Lima State hospital that Mrs. Laura E. Christy, 57, of East Liverpool, died there at 11:45 p. m. last Wednesday.

Mrs. Christy had been an inmate of the state hospital since January of 1926 when she was adjudged insane in Columbiana county probate court by two East Liverpool doctors.

She admitted to the court that she had poisoned her seventh husband, but was not indicted on a murder charge because of her mental condition.

Mrs. Christy was married eight times prior to her commitment to the hospital. Seven of her husbands died in West Virginia and authorities of that state carried on an investigation for some time into the causes of their deaths.

Funeral service for Mrs. Christy was held in the state hospital and burial was in the cemetery there.

TRAFFIC FLOW IS HEAVY HERE

Serious Motor Mishaps Missing During Holiday Weekend

Heavy traffic poured over Salem and district highways for hours Monday, but despite the seemingly endless chain of autos, there were no fatal accidents.

Police, stationed at main intersections in the business district, kept automobiles moving along in the city, and, unlike many previous holidays, traffic jams were missing.

Detours around the downtown section on several highways which generally bring the heaviest traffic into Salem also helped ease the congestion.

Five Are Injured
In the most serious district accident of the holiday weekend, five members of a family were injured when cars driven by Corwin Brock of R. D. 1, Deerfield, and W. C. Jefferson of Pittsburgh collided at the intersection of Routes 80 and 350, just south of Homeworth, at 3 p. m. Monday.

The injured were A. H. Brock, 62, who suffered cuts about the head and face; Mrs. A. H. Brock, 48, cuts on the head; Kenneth Brock, 11, nose bruises; Olive Brock, 15, scalp wounds, and Eldora Brock, 4, broken collarbone, cuts on the head and arms. All of the injured live at R. D. 1, Deerfield.

No one was injured in five other district accidents investigated by Salem state highway patrolmen.

Cars driven by Mrs. W. J. Swalenberg of Akron, formerly of Salem, and G. Bird of Akron were involved in an accident on Route 14 near North Benton at 9 p. m. Monday. State Patrolman R. I.

William Booth, 21, Killed In Crash

EAST LIVERPOOL, Sept. 7.—Former Ohio State university football teammates will be pallbearers at the funeral service for William (Bill) Booth, 21, of East Liverpool, who died Sunday following an automobile accident Saturday.

The service will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the St. Stephen's Episcopal church.

Booth died in the East Liverpool City hospital, victim of an automobile-truck collision at a curve in the Ohio river highway at Stratton, 12 miles west of here, during a rain storm.

Arrests Himself

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Clifford Tretz told police of an argument he had with a drunken driver and gave the officers a license number. In a few minutes patrolmen appeared at the station escorting a prisoner. "Here's your drunken driver, and the car is outside," they said.

"Why, that's the man who reported the drunken driver," Lieut. C. R. Purcell exclaimed.

Tretz explained that in his excitement he had given his own number.

2-DAY AFFAIR BRINGS 5,000 VISITORS HERE

Damenchor, of Erie, Pa., Picked by Judges As Best Choir In Competitive Singing; Wins Prized Flag

MASSED CHORUSES ARE HEARD

Cleveland Will Be Scene of Next Saengerfest; Saxon Convention Will Be Held At Farrell, Pa.

Tired physically, but happy in spirit, approximately 5,000 German folk from scattered sections of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan went back to their homes late Monday night when the seventh biennial saengerfest of the Transylvania Saxon Saengerbund of America came to an end here.

The saengerfest opened Sunday morning at the Saxon Country club on the Newgarden rd. Many of the visitors were on hand Saturday. Others arrived Sunday. Still a few others didn't come until Monday.

During the two days the Saxon and German people revelled at the scene of their song-fest. It appeared that always there was music, small groups singing here and there, and over in the far tent (marked concert hall) the 25 singing societies congregated Sunday to await their turn in the competitive singing.

The refreshment stands did a rush business. The folks from one city greeted the folks from another city, they laughed and were happy. Their countenances bespoke their hearts.

The competitive singing was the highlight on Sunday and probably the event that was awaited by the majority of the people. However, the singing by the massed choruses, under the direction of Jacob Faust, of Canton, on Monday, was beautiful. There is no other way to describe it.

Only Woman Chorister
To the Damenchor (women's choir) of Erie, Pa., went the coveted first place honors in competitive singing.

The Erie Damenchor, directed by Miss Juno Almenhagen, only woman chorister at the saengerfest, was rated by the judges with an almost perfect grade.

The Damenchor was given a score of a possible 74 5-6 out of a possible 75.

The Erie singers will keep the prize flag, awarded in this event, until the next saengerfest. The Damenchor sang "Morgen im Walde" by von Frederick Hegar, to win.

Plan Next Saengerfest
The judges were Prof. Oppenheim, former Mount Union college music instructor; Emil Rinkendorf, of Alliance, noted band director, and known to Salem music lovers, and Theodore Koerner of Johnstown, Pa., a professor and chorus director in that city.

Delegates to the Salem saengerfest chose Cleveland East as the host society for the 1939 biennial saengerfest. The societies also hold a biennial convention and Farrell, Pa., was selected as the convention city for next summer.

Informal singing also was a feature of the saengerfest. Additional music was provided by the Cleveland Swiss Vodel quintet and small orchestra groups. Emil Rinkendorf directed the symphony orchestra. Gaudin's orchestra played for the dancing at the pavilion.

Speakers heard the opening day of the saengerfest included State Senator John Taylor of Salem; Charles Leasure, a special envoy from the office of Gov. Martin L. Davey; Probate Judge H. W. Hammond and Rev. John Bauman, pastor of Emmanuel American Lutheran church.

Lisbon Authorities Study New Clues In Mysterious Murder

LISBON, Sept. 7.—Prosecutor Karl Stouffer investigated a new lead into Lisbon's still unsolved murder mystery today after George Brennanman, 21, of Lisbon, reported he had discovered a slug and cartridge case where the slain man's body was found here more than a month ago.

The prosecutor believes the slug and cartridge case may have been found from the gun which killed the man. He intends to forward them to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for examination by ballistic experts.

The cartridge case is labeled for a 25 calibre automatic, the same type of gun which was found on the victim's body.

The identity of the slain man is yet to be definitely established. A short time ago, it was believed the dead man was Donald McLean of Beaver Falls, Pa., but this clue was smashed when McLean appeared very much alive at Warrendale, Pa.

Since putting in an appearance at Warrendale, the man who identified himself as McLean has disappeared, leaving authorities still puzzled.

ONE BIG COMPANY

It's hard to know which is more important—that France can mobilize six million men in 48 hours or that the railroads which make such speedy mobilization possible henceforth are to be nationalized. The former fact was disclosed Wednesday when the government decreed railroad nationalization.

From the French point of view there's probably no doubt. For better or worse, France is in the clutch of the "one big company" boys, with that "one big company" to be controlled by the government—a political monopoly.

The United States, which has been having its ins and outs with the same crowd, is going to keep its eye on France. It won't be long till the American evangelists of "one big government," "one big supreme court," "one big plan" and "one big happy family" will be using France for an example, instead of Great Britain, where they still take Lord Macaulay too seriously.

When that happens it will be interesting to know more about the French mobilization plans, too, because by that time six million Frenchmen probably will want to leave home in a hurry—and that many of 'em can't be wrong.

TRYING THE LINE

Decision to spend no more money on homestead projects, announced by Agriculture Secretary Wallace, comes at a time when 30 of 100 proposed projects are completed.

The projects were enormously expensive, in proportion to direct benefits to those who will use them. Under supervision of Rexford G. Tugwell, when he was a member of the agriculture department, they were useful examples of what happens when an over-zealous, under-trained bureaucracy is turned loose on social experimentation with a lot of money to spend.

At the same time, however, the projects were useful examples of what can be done with community planning and model low cost housing to make a more abundant life for the "hill housed." But, at best, they were only examples. Even if almost unlimited money were available and were to be spent without waste, a resettlement project still would be little more than a demonstration, due to the large proportions of the problem. Thirty-six of them probably are as effective as 100. Meantime, the agriculture department will pursue the idea by making loans to farmers under the new farm tenancy act.

To use President Roosevelt's figure of speech, appropriate to the approaching football season, the department will call another signal. Instead of trying to make a touchdown all at once with a long pass, it will pick up a few yards through the center of the line.

WHY MEN LEAVE HOME

If by deliberate intention rope had been given the national labor relations act to hang itself, the result could not have been more discouraging than the case of the National Electric Products Corp.

The corporation's plant at Ambridge, Pa., employs 1,600 persons. On May 27, it made a closed shop contract with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, A. F. of L. affiliate. Immediately, the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America, a C. I. O. union, challenged the contract, called a strike and closed the plant.

The plant was reopened under a truce, whereupon the A. F. of L. union brought suit to compel the company to abide by its contract. The C. I. O. union charged before the regional labor board that the company had violated the labor act by unfair practices and sought an election to determine which union should have jurisdiction.

The national labor relations board has ordered the company to hold such an election. The federal district court for northern Pennsylvania has ordered the company to abide by its contract with the A. F. of L. union. The board says the court has no jurisdiction, the president of the A. F. of L. union says the board is trying to designate John L. Lewis and his allies as the official labor movement of the United States, and officials of the National Electric Corp. probably are looking up steamship schedules to Shanghai, where things are relatively peaceful.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, September 7

A lively and probably exciting day, with much stirring in business and private lives, is presaged from the transits of the moon over the activating planets. Employment will prove interesting and progressive, with small recognitions or favors. Other matters assume intriguing phases, particularly as they are involved with corporations, secret societies, political or diplomatic organizations.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly active and progressive year, with employment under good prospect of favors or some token of preferment. Transactions with large concerns, rings, political or diplomatic circles or with secret lodges or fraternities will be intriguing and fairly prosperous. However, there are temptations in the way of speculation, social extravagances and indulgences to guard against.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, energetic, of speculative or expansive ideas and large ambitions, winning favoritism from its employers or others in power. Its social tendencies may lead it to extravagances and personal indulgences.

For Wednesday, September 8

A day in which there may be something accomplished in the way of selling new ideas, putting over new projects or otherwise taking a step forward in fulfilling certain ambitions is forecast by the aspects between major planets. There may be trivial anxieties in employment or some petty vexations or dissension, but matters are promising, especially in connection with writings, advertising or promotions.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of promising prospects, particularly in connection with new plans and projects. There is sign of expanded opportunities and of helpful contacts, all leading in the direction of fulfilled ambitions. Writings, publishing and promotion are especially encouraged, with individual initiative playing an important part.

A child born on this day may be versatile, capable in many things, of fair ambitions and personally popular, despite tendencies to criticism, conventionalism and hints of self-righteousness. It may be clever in writing.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—Perhaps no one in the business of writing had such a skyrocketing upshoot and fell with such a dull plink as the widely coiffed Joan Lowell. Whether or not Joan's widely discussed and doubted book, "Cradle of the Deep," was authentic makes little difference now.

It was a lively, liver-shaker in a day when publishing books seemed a bit moribund. And Joan became one of the sure-fire head-turners in the cafes and at first nights, as much so indeed as the enormously publicized Libby Holman, whom she resembled, is at the moment.

Joan married and was divorced from the playwright Thompson Buchanan. And she embarked on another voyage around the world in a leaky tub that got no further than Sandy Hook. Then somehow her star of destiny slid into eclipse and she was heard from only at intervals.

Now it develops Joan has not only said goodbye to literature forever, but also to America in general and New York in particular. She is in Guaragua, Brazil, running a health station for the government and is tanned to the coppery bronze of an Indian.

Not many writers have winnowed as much fame with such slight effort as Dorothy Parker. Her published works, chiefly poetry, are less than a half dozen thin volumes, and her articles in Vanity Fair and The New Yorker were always scanty. Much of her celebrity, it is true, came from her wise-cracks, any number of which were not really hers. But she was a good peg to hang them on. Anyway there are few writers in such demand. An article or a poem from her will just an editorial room out of its deepest dolor. And her popularity is as large in England as in America.

While necessity perhaps made O. Henry more prolific than Miss Parker, editors declare he was one of the difficult authors from whom to wangle stories. He would enthuse in discussing them and promise prompt delivery, but nearly all were delivered spang on the dead-line. He always had them clearly fixed in his mind, but the actual putting on paper was a drudgery from which he shrank.

To many, Postmaster General Farley is the No. 1 Human Enigma of politics. Even his bitterest enemies have to admit he has admirable qualities according to social standards. He does not drink, smoke, use profanity, and no one hears him tell an off-color story, even in relaxing moments with intimates. And he is about the most devoted family man anywhere. Farley has perhaps the greatest capacity extant for remembering faces and names. He never misses fire, no matter how much time has elapsed between meetings. There are, of course, any number who have nothing but jeers for his record as a boxing official and for certain tricks in politics, but usually even his detractors wind up tossing him a posy or so.

Soliloquy: Most of us who drift to New York from the congenial places soon find ourselves shrinking from human contact. This aloofness is acquired almost unconsciously and follows the succession of rebuffs in trying to establish the same plane of familiarity we knew out yonder. The Happy Jacks, so well known to smaller communities, with a friendly word and smile for everyone, meet only the frosty glance here. Yet no city so long for a touch of friendliness. Like every large city, suspicion is in the air. Most of us regard those who make our acquaintance and have not been vouchered for as potential confidence folk. And the worst of it is they usually are.

CHIGGER BITES

RECENTLY I told you about the dangers that sometime follow the sting of a black spider or of a hungry bee. Today, I want to tell you something about the chigger or "red bug." This insect is capable of causing marked discomfort and severe pain.

The red bug is a small insect, found in many parts of the country. The egg from which it comes usually is laid on bushes or tall grasses growing in damp or shaded places. You need have no fear of having a chigger bite if you are in the sunshine, or in an open field, especially if it is closely cropped.

If you come in contact with the bug, it will attach itself to the skin and cause red blotches to appear. Occasionally the spot of redness may reach the size of a silver half dollar. The inflammation causes marked irritation and discomfort. Neglect may lead to infection and serious complications.

Sometimes the bite of a chigger is confused with that of a spider or other insect. But there is quite a difference between them. Unlike the spider, the chigger has no poisonous venom, and for this reason does not lead to internal poisoning. The discomfort caused by a chigger bite is purely local, its effects rarely spreading to other parts of the body.

Hard to Locate

It is difficult to locate and treat a chigger bite because it is so small and almost imperceptible. As a rule, its effects can be combated by the application to the skin of a strong antiseptic. In most instances, iodine or carbolic acid is used. Great care must be taken in the application of acid because it is extremely caustic; it should be applied only to the center of the red spot.

Following the local application, it is well to take a hot bath. Use plenty of soap and water and scrub the skin thoroughly. Follow the Agriculturists advise the sprinkling of some antiseptic on the clothing when working in sections of the country where chiggers are prevalent. Powdered sulphur is used for this purpose. It need only be applied to the shoes and lower garments since the chigger rarely

Answers to Health Queries
Mrs. B. B. Q.—Would three-quarters of a teaspoonful of sulphur taken daily to purify the blood, prove harmful to the teeth, eyes or any other part of the body?

A—Medication should always be taken under the supervision of a physician. Your doctor will prescribe any treatment you may require. Follow his judgment. It would be unwise to continue the practice in question unless you have been advised.

When is a Laborer Worthy of His Hire?

A man may get the wages he thinks he ought to have, and enjoy short hours and the most ideal working conditions. But, unless he lays aside part of what he earns, for the future comfort and security of himself and his family, he must be classed as a laborer unworthy of his hire. In other words, the earnest efforts made through the years to better his conditions, will have been wasted upon him. For after all, there is no real substitute for individual thrift and common sense.

Basements Are Made Livable With Aid Of FHA Loans, Reports Stoker Dealer

MODERNIZATION AIDED BY FHA

Accelerates trend Toward Extensive Use Of Basement Space

The FHA modernization program is accelerating the trend toward more extensive use of basement space for pleasure purposes in modern homes, according to Mr. Tolerton of the Citizens Ice and Coal company, local Iron Fireman dealer.

"The federal program is assisting many residents to replace obsolete heating systems with new, clean and quiet automatic equipment," he said.

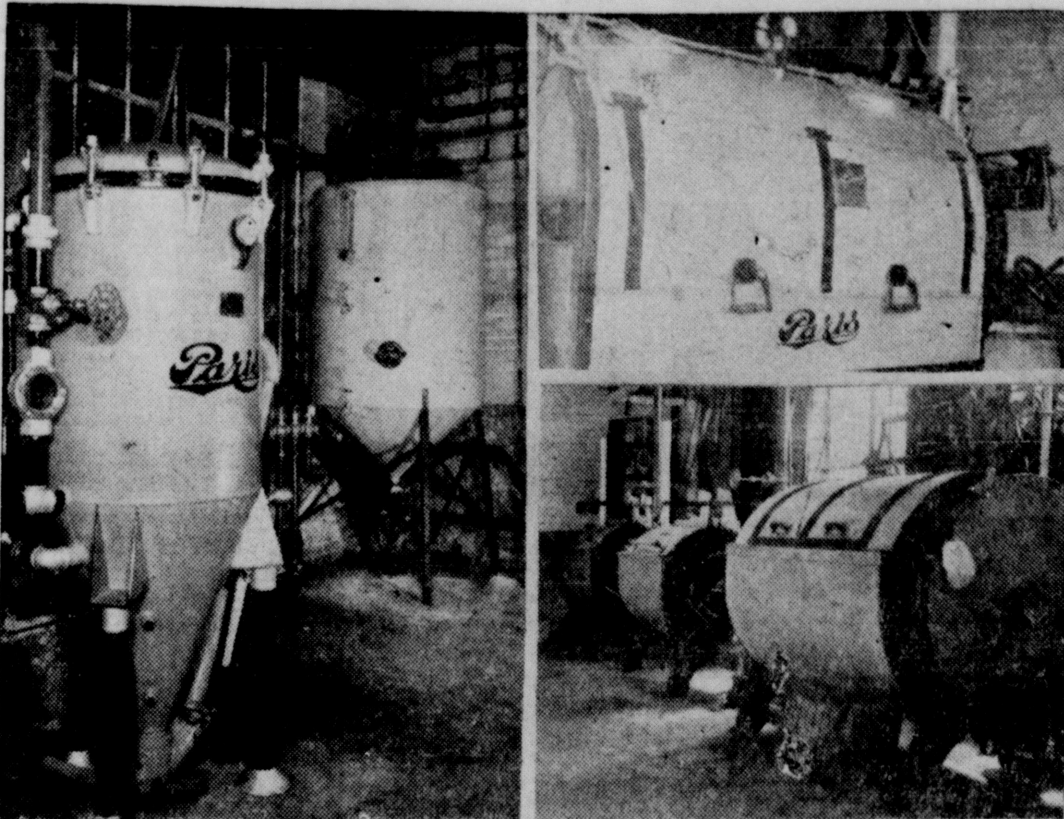

"The FHA is helping finance not only the purchase of automatic coal burners but also the construction of new dust-tight coal bins, especially adapted for the recently introduced bin-feed stokers which convey coal automatically from storage pile to furnace.

"Automatic coal firing brings the basement into consideration as a 'part of the house' as it never has been before—clean, quiet, livable.

"Dirt and noise are abolished so completely that they are no longer deterrent factors in planning basements for social or domestic use of any kind."

STRESS SAFETY IN NEW AIRFLOW

Chrysler Product Demonstrates Goodyear Life-guard Tubes

Four Chrysler Airflow cars are now touring the country giving demonstrations of the efficiency of the Goodyear Lifeguard tube in preventing serious consequences when a tire is blown out or otherwise suddenly deflated. The Airflow was considered an ideal car on which to demonstrate this new safety feature because its design incorporates so many other safety features.

In the first place, the Airflow has an integral body and frame construction in which the passengers the frame instead of riding on it. They are in effect placed within a box made of steel girders extending from front bumper to tail light.

Four Safety Factors

Scientific weight distribution, a low center of gravity and perfect balance also contribute to the Airflow's safety. The car is equipped with Chrysler's time-tested hydraulic brakes and with safety glass throughout. With the Life guard tube, it has a fourth great safety factor to add to its staunch steel body, perfect brakes and non-shatterable glass.

The LifeGuard is in effect a tire within a tire. When the outer casing is punctured so that the air escapes instantly from the regular tube, the LifeGuard or inner tube retains its pressure long enough to enable the driver to bring the car to a smooth, safe stop, no matter at what speed he might have been traveling when the deflation occurred. The car retains its balance and its steering ability despite the puncture. In fact, the driver hardly is conscious of any difference in the way it responds to the wheel.

Given Severe Tests

In the demonstrations now being given, tires are blown out by means of dynamite caps and sharp knives or spikes placed on the roadway. Tests are made at speeds of as high as 85 miles an hour, which would mean a serious accident in many cases if ordinary tubes were used. With LifeGuards, however, the worst blowout becomes no more serious than a slow leak and the car is easily brought to a stop even on the narrowest road.

These tests are being conducted in conjunction with the police departments of the various cities visited. In every case the police officials witnessing and participating in them have expressed the opinion that the LifeGuard is a very important factor in promoting safety on the highways, not only for the driver of the car so equipped but for all drivers who might be in the vicinity of a car that sustained a blowout.

Theater Attractions

Jack Benny, Ida Lupino and Richard Arlen, stars of "Artists and Models" at the State.

A bright new comedy, "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air", will be shown at the State Wednesday and Thursday. The picture depicts the romance of a radio actor, Kenny Baker, and three girl friends, Jane Wyman, Gertrude Michael and Alice Brady. Frank McHugh supplies the comedy.

Baker, long a radio favorite, is being launched on a film career. "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air" is his first starring picture.

Benny Picture Concludes
"Artists and Models" concludes tonight at the State theater.

The ace comedy cast is headed by Jack Benny, Ida Lupino, Gail Patrick, Richard Arlen, Ben Blue, Judy Canova, the Yacht Club boys and Louis Armstrong's Swing orchestra — and features specialty numbers by Mathia Raye, Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra; Judy, Anne and Zeke; Connie Boswell; England's most beautiful model, Sandra Storme; and the six greatest living artists; Peter Arno, McClelland Barclay, Arthur William Brown, Rube Goldberg, John LaGarde and Russell Patterson, whose famous "Personettes," carved miniature figures, also play an important part.

The story opens with Jack Benny, head of the dizziest advertising agency in the world, torn between the fires of approaching bigamy and a breach-of-promise suit. He has promised to marry Ida Lupino, beautiful model whom he has "sold" to Richard Arlen for use in Dick's advertising campaign. But in the meantime, Jack has fallen in love with Gail Patrick, Dick's fiancée. And just to give him a few additional headaches, Jack remembers that he has promised both Ida and Gail that he will have each of them elected Queen of the Artists and Models ball, of which he is chairman.

Arlen, who is now in love with Miss Lupino, is hurt by what he considers a lie from her, and goes to Europe to try to forget. He cannot, however, and returns just before the ball.

Double Bill at Grand
"Flight From Glory", featuring Chester Morris, Whitney Bourne, Onslow Stevens and Van Heflin; and "Outlaws of the Orient" starring Jack Holt, Mae Clark and Harold Huber, will be the attractions at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday.

"Flight From Glory" deals with a group of men exiled from their own country after their profession has blacklisted them in their own.

Laid in a bleak South American air base, the story grimly lays bare the forlorn hopes of a group of disgraced aviators who have accepted an offer from a mercenary airline owner in Peru to pilot his condemned ships over the treacherous Andes mountains.

Jack Holt, in "Outlaws of the Orient", portrays an American in charge of rich oil fields in North China. He has returned to the United States to be married but two days before the ceremony, he receives word that he must get back to the oil fields in China to save them from sabotage by Tartar tribes from the mountains.

On The Gobi Desert
Returning to the Gobi desert, he learns he must stay indefinitely, because his drink-sodden brother, played by James Bush, has almost hopelessly muddled the situation.

THREE SALEM NETTERS ANNEX COUNTY TITLES

GIANTS START WESTERN TOUR OUT IN FRONT

Terry Terriers Holding Three-Game Lead In National Loop

By DREW MIDDLETON
Westward the path of the pennant takes its way with the game of the middle of the road. Just about everything possible in baseball happened for 245,000 major league fans who saw yesterday's 16 games. Lefty Lee Grissom of the Reds pitched a one-hitter and lost. Ray Phebus hurled a one-hitter for Washington and won. Joe Dimaggio slapped homer No. 40; Hank Greenberg powdered No. 33.

And when it was all over? The Giants had won two and the Cubs had split. The New Yorkers start an 18-game trip to hostile ballfields tomorrow with a three game lead.

Supported by the stalwart arms of Cliff Melton and Hal Schumacher, the Giants drubbed the Phillies 6 to 2 and 9 to 3. Honest John McCarthy hit two home runs; Harry Danning got another. Mel Ott extended his hitting streak to 21 straight games and drew closer to the coveted 300 mark. The thunderous cheers that greeted the conquerors were matched in Chicago by the moans of the North Siders. The last place Reds came very close to trimming the Cubs twice. They won the opener 7-3 behind Paul Derringer. Grissom checked the Cubs in the nightcap until the eighth when Phil Cavaretta's pop fly double, a sacrifice, a wild pitch and a long fly plus some shoddy infield play landed the Chicagoans two runs and the ball game, 2-1.

The Pirates and Cardinals, the only other clubs even faintly in the race, split. The Cards won one behind Bob Weiland, 4-1, and Arky Vaughan's homer took the second for the Bucs, 5-4. The Dodgers won behind Luke Hamlin 2-1 in ten innings and then bowed before Lou Pette as that admirable and aged rookie won his 17th victory.

Young Mr. Phebus, a 28-year-old righthander from Clovis, Calif., by way of Chattanooga, brought his talent to the attention of the American league by blanking the Red Sox with one hit after the Sox, behind the venerable Lefty Grove, had won the opener, 6-2. Phebus fanned four and walked seven. The Yankees had little trouble with the Philadelphia Athletics, taking two, 6-3, and 2-1. Signor Dimaggio and Ivy Paul Andrews, who pitched a neat three-hit game, figured prominently in the proceedings. The Bronx Bombers kept pace with their competition (heh, heh) as the Tigers shook down the Browns, 10-9 and 5-2 with Greenberg and Pete Fox leading the way. Bob Feller fanned nine, allowed four hits and tripled to give the Indians an even break 2-1 after Ted Lyons had halted the Tribe in the morning game for the White Sox by the same score.

Judge, Campbell, Eckstein Win Golf Club Tourneys

Local Mashie Swingers Kept Busy Over Weekend With Two Tournaments Sunday and Monday and Finals in President's Cup Meet

Mashie swingers at the Salem Golf club were kept busy over the weekend with tournaments Sunday and Monday and semi-final matches in the President's cup event.

The Sunday tourney, a match play against par affair with full handicaps allowed, was won by Vincent Judge, who finished even up with a card of 83-12-71. Ralph Knepper came in three down to take second place. His card was 74-2-72. Full handicaps were allowed in the flag tournament Monday in which Bob Campbell captured top honors in the first flight for golfers with handicaps up to 18 and Ward Eckstein won out in the second flight for golfers with handicaps over 18.

James Craig was second in the first flight and Knepper was third. J. A. Harwood took runner-up honors in the second flight, while Atty W. E. Peters copped third place.

Campbell planted his flag about 10 inches from the cup on the No. 17 green to win in the first flight. Craig's flag was 200 yards down the fairway on No. 17. Knepper holed out on No. 16 in finishing third.

Semi-final matches in the President's cup tournament saw Judge defeat N. L. Walken, 3 and 2, and Campbell win over E. W. Mellinger of Leetonia, 2 and 1.

Judge and Campbell will meet in the 36-hole finals sometime this week. Three-fourths handicaps will be granted both finalists in the championship match.

CANTON TAKES LEAGUE CROWN

Closing Drive Places Terriers On Top In M.-A. Loop

COLUMBUS, Sept. 6.—The last week drive of the Canton Terriers to the top of the Mid-Atlantic league held good today and put them into the Shaughnessy playoff as the No. 1 team of the circuit with 81 victories and 49 losses.

Only a half-game behind stood Springfield, leader during most of the season, with 81 wins and 47 defeats.

Beginning Wednesday Canton meets third-place Portsmouth and Springfield plays fourth-position Akron, the winners of three out of five games to clash for the loop crown. Portsmouth had won 72 and lost 57 against Akron's 63 and 62.

Both Canton and Springfield won Labor day doubleheaders to maintain their positions, the Terriers beating Portsmouth 3 to 1 and 3 to 2 and the Indians whipping Akron 10 to 3 and 5 to 3.

Dayton and Charleston wound up in a tie for fifth place, each with 61 games won and 65 lost. Johnstown beat the Ducks 6 to 1 and 6 to 1 and Zanesville trampled the Senators 8 to 3 and 11 to 4. Johnstown's record was 52 won and 74 lost and Zanesville's 35 won and 88 lost.

Manager Pat Patterson saved the day for Canton by hitting a home run in the eighth inning of the second game to tie the score and then smashing out another in the tenth with two out. Danaher hit a homer in the opening game.

First Baseman Walsh and Shortstop Scailzi homered to help Springfield take the opener. Although held to four hits in the night cap, the Indians made three walks, an error and a triple good for a win.

Harrison and Kennedy homered for Zanesville in the opener and Andrews hit a circuit smash with two on in the night hit.

Nethery and Foster each pitched six-hit ball for Johnstown in setting down Dayton.

Wanda Natalie, 15-year-old Galveston, Texas, schoolgirl, is shown right up behind the eight-ball. Wanda took the male pocket-billiards into camp in the city's class-B championships. She has frequently made straight runs of 25.

YOUNG PAYERS SHOW STRENGTH IN NET EVENTS

Many Good Rookies Seen In National Tennis Tournament

By GAYLE TALBOT
FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 7.—The older inhabitants around the West Side tennis club are of the opinion that the current national championships have brought to light more really promising young talent than any other tournament in many a year.

With the youngsters cropping up faster than young corn and the oldsters turning professional almost as fast, there's no way of even guessing who will be on the American Davis cup squad in two or three years. It's not even safe to predict they will be from California.

"You have too many fine players," breathed Baron Gottfried Von Cramm yesterday after his defeat by Kansas City's had carried him to four tough sets before a record Labor day throng. "Where do they come from?"

The Baron, having been taken to four sets in a previous match by another unknown, Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, and having watched his teammate, Henner Henkel, succumb to Martin Buxby, who once won the Connecticut state tennis crown, undoubtedly feels that a visitor to this country gets ganged up on.

Among the most promising young players seen in action around here in recent days were Owen Anderson of Hollywood; Merrimon Cuningim, of Nashville, Tenn.; Julius Heldman of Hollywood; Joseph Hunt of Los Angeles; Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla.; McNeill, the Oklahoma City lad who scared Von Cramm, and Robert Harman of Oakland, Calif.

Of this group, only Hunt and Cuningim were left when the somewhat scrambled program was resumed today, but the others all left their calling cards. Heldman, a loose-limbed left hander who gave Johnny Van Ryn a terrific five-set battle in an early round, particularly made an impression on the so-called experts. He, like Hunt and Bobby Riggs, is a former junior champion. Hunt, in fact, still is the junior kingpin.

Surface, after two seasons at Wimbledon, looks about ready to jump right up among the big fellows. He was ranked only eleventh nationally last year, but his showing in the present championships, climaxed by his thrilling stand against Von Cramm yesterday, is likely to lift him to fifth place this season. The German needed every particle of his speed and guile to outscore the Kansas City star.

Cuningim is almost unknown in his home country, but has developed a sound game while attending University in England the last two years. He plays a postponed match today with Charlie Ware, the British Davis cupper, and if he wins will bump into Riggs in the quarter-finals tomorrow.

The outstanding tussle today looked to be that between the two former "boy wonders," Sidney Wood, Jr., and Frankie Parker. Nobody has given Sidney much thought lately. He hasn't been playing any tennis to speak of and apparently entered the championships more for a lark than anything else, but his game has surprised everybody, including Sidney.

In the three other matches scheduled to pare the upper bracket down to the quarter-finals, Don Budge met Yvon Petra of France, Joel Hunt opposed Jiro Yamagishi of Japan, and John Van Ryn played Charlie Harris of West Palm Beach. Harris conquered Martin Buxby, best of the incomparables.

Things were rocking along about as expected in the women's division, with the "big four"—Alice Marble, Anita Lizana, Helen Jacobs and Jadwiga Jedzejowska—getting closer and closer to their promised battle royal in the semi-finals.

Things were rocking along about as expected in the women's division, with the "big four"—Alice Marble, Anita Lizana, Helen Jacobs and Jadwiga Jedzejowska—getting closer and closer to their promised battle royal in the semi-finals.

MEL OTT and HAL SCHUMACHER, Giants—Ott's three hits led Giants in 6-0 win in opener. Schumacher pitched five-hitter to beat Phillies in second 9-3.

JOHNNY COONEY and LUKE HAMLIN, Dodgers; Lou Fette, Bucs—Cooney's three hits helped Hamlin turn back Bucs in first game 2-1; Fette stopped Dodgers in nightcap 6-4.

PAUL DERRINGER, Reds; CURT DAVIS, Cubs — Derringer turned back Cubs 7-3; then Davis yielded four hits to win second game, 2-1.

BOB WEILAND, Cardinals; ARKY VAUGHAN, Pirates—Weiland halted Bucs in opener, 4-1; Vaughan hit ninth-inning homer to take second contest, 5-4.

TED LYONS, White Sox; BOB FELLER, Indians — Lyons yielded five hits trimming Indians, 2-1; Feller fanned nine, allowed four hits and banged triple to win by same score.

JOE DIMAGGIO and IVY PAUL ANDREWS, Yankees—Dimaggio's 40th homer paced Yanks to 6-3 first win; Andrews' three hit hurling took second, 2-1.

Lakers Defeat Minerva Twice; Lose To Carrollton Reds

Making up for a 7 to 5 defeat received at the hands of Carrollton Red Birds Sunday, Lake Placencia took both ends of a double-header with the Minerva Eagles at the lake diamond yesterday.

The Lakers won the first game of the double-bill, 9 to 4, as Willis Schopfer pitched six-hit ball. In the nightcap, which was called at seven innings, Bus Simpson turned in a four-hit pitching job to give Placencia an 8 to 1 victory.

Maxwell, Schopfer, Ted Schwartzhoff and Miller hit home runs in the first game. There were no circuit blows in the nightcap.

Johnny Eells pitched good ball for the Lakers Sunday, but errors by his mates cost him a victory. Schopfer had four errors at second base where he was subbing for Joe Schwartzhoff, who was operated on for appendicitis last week.

EMENY DEFEATS EARLY TO TAKE SINGLES CROWN

Albertson - Early Annex Championship In Doubles

Columbiana county tennis championships rested in the hands of three Salem netters today after play in the annual county tournament was completed at the Salem Country club over the holiday weekend.

George Emeny won the singles title and the team of Willard Albertson and Loren Early captured the doubles championship.

Emeny, who held the county title a number of years ago, defeated Early in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, in the finals of the singles, while Albertson and Early conquered Emeny and Merle Caldwell, 6-3, -7, 5-7, 6-5, in the finals of the doubles.

Emeny advanced to the finals by whipping Walter Deming, 6-1, 6-1, in the semi-finals; Dr. Richard Harwood, 7-5, 8-6, in the quarter finals; Bob Hammill in the second round and Tom Moore in the first round.

In winning the championship in five matches, Emeny didn't lose a set. He encountered his stiffest opposition against Harwood in the quarter-finals when he was extended into extra games to win two straight sets.

Early got into the finals of the singles by turning back Albertson, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, in the semi-finals and Franklin Kearney of Lisbon, 6-2, 6-2, in the quarterfinals. He won both his first and second round matches by default.

Early and Albertson defeated Dave Carey and Don Hammill of Salem in the semi-finals of the doubles. Emeny and Caldwell moved into the championship match of the doubles by taking Harwood and Deming in the semi-finals.

It was the second straight year that Albertson has shared the doubles title. Last year he paired with Deming to win the championship.

The recapitulation of the championship matches in singles and doubles, listed according to earned points, outs, nets and double faults, is as follows:

HONOLULU—James W. Harvey, local sportsman, is believed to have established a new world's record in landing a 26 pound yellow tuna fish with regulation tackle. Paul Capler, who was fishing with him, landed a 217 pounder almost simultaneously. The two men caught 814 pounds of tuna in four hours.

er conferences spread over the last two years, have agreed on a new list of birthstones. The list agrees with the standard American list and also with the list most commonly used in France.

Historic Salem Being Restored

By WALTER MONMOUTH
International Illustrated News
Writer

SALEM—Steeped in lore of bygone days when her three-masted schooners scoured the seas, ancient Salem's wharf will soon be restored to its rightful place as a historic landmark.

Worn by centuries of ceaseless tide, the venerable wharf has lain in idleness since the sailing ship gave way to the steamboat and Salem's maritime power began to fade.

Now a grant of federal funds has been made, and the historic wharf will be restored to its fullest glory, as it appeared when Salem led in the flourishing Far East trade.

The wharf took its name from Richard Derby, a merchant prince of the colonial period whose imposing mansion, richly furnished with treasures of the Andes, still stands overlooking the harbor.

Hawthorne Clerked There
In the stately old customhouse at the head of the wharf, Nathaniel Hawthorne spent many hours, while serving as customs inspector and weaving plots of his immortal stories. Tradition says that it was here the theme of "The Scarlet Letter" was conceived.

When the colonies revolted from British rule, Salem turned her fast-sailing fleet to the service of the revolution, capturing more British vessels than boats from all other American ports combined.

Again in the war of 1812, Salem provided 40 out of a total of 250 armed vessels used by the United States. A large portion of this fleet set sail from Derby wharf and anchored there between forays.

Salem Once Queen Port
Long before Boston, New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia had taken their places on the roster of great, eighteenth century ports, Salem was the recognized leader. Railroad developments and the advent of deep-draft steamships eclipsed its star.

Co-operating in the restoration movement are the federal government, commonwealth of Massachusetts, city of Salem, and the Society for Preservation of New England Antiquities. The project will cost about $150,000.

The restoration is the first under the National Historic Sites act passed by congress. The act provides for federal funds to vitalize and commemorate traditions associated with the early development of the nation.

chusetts, city of Salem, and the Society for Preservation of New England Antiquities. The project will cost about $150,000.

STRIP FARMING PROVES SUCCESS

Procedure stops Soil Erosion On Farm at Carrollton

CARROLLTON, Sept. 7.—Two thousand dollars wouldn't be enough to induce Ralph McIntire to go back to his old system of farming, he tells his Carroll county neighbors. Furthermore, he has sold them on strip farming.

Strip cropping, according to McIntire, has stopped soil erosion on his sloping fields. It is easier on his team and on him, because he tills the land across the slopes instead of up and down the hills. Taking their cue from his success, several of his neighbors have adopted strip cropping, and others have requested him to lay out their fields on the contour.

McIntire's entrance into strip farming was made in 1935, when he signed a cooperative agreement with the Carrollton CCC camp, which is operated by the Soil Conservation Service. Thirty acres were laid out in strips by the camp, and 37 acres will be added next year. The strips are 45 feet wide, some of them being half a mile in length. He is following a four-year rotation of corn, wheat and two years' meadow.

Under his cropping plan, McIntire has adopted a general soil conservation system for his 163-acre farm in Lee township. His pastures are being improved to hold the soil and produce greater forage. Steeper slopes were planted to farm woods, fenced to exclude livestock. Gullies which might form in natural draws are being prevented by four sodded waterways, from which he expects an annual hay crop. He is liming and fertilizing both crop and pasture fields.

SEMINOLE, Okla.— Superintendent J. Henry Brown of the Wolf school district near here today is faced with the problem of finding several more babies as subjects for demonstration before he can open his first class in practice nursery work.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal.—Ignace Jan Paderewski knows prunes as well as pianos. As owner of 79 acres of prunes near here he has signed the agreement of California prune growers to remove from the market all off-grade fruit.

Perique Farmers Still Prosper

Christophe Roussel
Pressure curing perique
Harvesting tobacco leaves
Nature has worked her annual miracle in St. James parish in Louisiana and the world supply of perique—mystery tobacco that will grow nowhere else on the globe—is stored away in sheds ready for the long and secret curing process. The unusually strong and pungent tobacco leaf grown in this sector is an important ingredient in smoking mixtures. Perique was discovered by the Indians long before the French and Spanish explorers first set foot in Louisiana. The secret process of curing it has been handed down through the generations of St. James' parishioners whose patriarchal head is Christophe Roussel, descendant of the exiled Acadians who settled there. Attempts have been made to grow perique elsewhere but only the climate and soil in this particular section of Louisiana is suitable for the purpose.

CHAPTER XXXIX

Stebbins finished his meal before Denny did and she was actually relieved when he rose and uncouthly wiped his palm across his mouth, mumbling through it, "Well, I got to be getting at the chores." She tried not to be obvious in her watching of him as he busied himself making her camp comfortable for the night, but from under lowered lids she followed his every move. He cleared the bunk of its accumulation of dried boughs, and with a broom of cedar branches swept the earthen floor to a semblance of neatness. After spreading several wolf skins in the bunk, he placed her sleeping bag on top of them. He unrolled it slowly, and then ran his hand down the length of it, giving her a sly, calculating look that made her heart contract.

But a few minutes later she chided herself for her foolish fears when Stebbins, placing himself respectfully before her, announced, "Your bed's fixed now, Mrs. Bourne. You can hit the hay any time. I'll bunk down outside as soon as I clean up the dishes."

"Oh, never mind the dishes, Stebbins. I'll wash them. Thank you for arranging my bed so nicely. And—good night."

"Okay by me," he answered good-naturedly.

After Denny finished the dishes, she opened the door and stood looking out into the darkness. The outlines of the trees walling the clearing were almost merged into the gloom of the night. Stebbins' campfire flamed up, crimsoning the stretch of snow between it and the cabin. In front of it, the man had unrolled his blankets on top of the sled; back of it he had erected a framework of poles, over which he was now draping a tarpaulin to act as a windbreak and a reflector of heat. His shadow moved against the canvas and beyond across the snow—a thing of long arms, reaching, weaving, like a monstrous spider busy in its web.

Denny turned quickly and shut the door. Her rude shelter had suddenly become a stronghold, almost a home.

She took up the candle and, holding it high in one hand, went over to the bunk and inspected her sleeping arrangements. She was startled by the sound of the door opening behind her.

She whirled to see Stebbins stepping boldly into the cabin. In the candlelight, the ear flaps on his cap stood out like the ears of a beast, and his gaunt face wore a gold-toothed smile.

"Stebbins!" she spoke sharply. "You will please knock before entering!" Her hand was fluttering with alarm, but she held herself very straight and fixed him with a cool stare that wiped the smile from his mouth. "What do you want?"

He tugged his cap off apologetically. "Oh, nothing—nothing at all, Mrs. Bourne. I just came to ask if everything is all right." He ran his hand through his long, dark hair, and his gaunt face wore a gold-toothed smile.

Denny's alarm was now giving way to indignation at the familiarity of the man's actions. Then she told herself he meant well. He had acted so merely through ignorance. "Everything is very satisfactory, thank you, Stebbins. If I need anything further I shall call you. Good night."

He shuffled his feet but made no move to go. She caught the smell of rum.

Suddenly pulling a bottle of rum from his mackinaw pocket, he said, "I figured, being as we got along so well together today, that you and me might have a little drink before we turned in. What do you say?" He held the bottle toward her with a lip-lifting smile.

Outrage, anger, and fear produced in Denny an instant's panic but she gained control of herself immediately and in a steady voice replied, "I never drink rum," she said coldly. "And I'm much too tired to talk any more tonight. We shall be pushing on at daybreak, and I must get some sleep."

"Well, now I'm in no particular hurry, Mrs. Bourne," he declared, watching her covertly. "We can sleep as late as you like in the morning."

It was the infection rather than the words that was offensive. Denny stiffened, and bending her stern gaze on the fellow, said, with painstaking distinctness, "Listen, Stebbins. I'm paying you to get me to Wrangell at the earliest possible moment. I'm paying you seven hundred and fifty dollars—the hour we hand there. I insist that we get under way at daybreak. Now, good night."

"Oh, sure sure, Mrs. Bourne. I wasn't meaning no offense. He hastily thrust the bottle back into his pocket. "And I reckon you are pretty tired—not being used to this sort of traveling. Good night." With an awkward gesture of salute, he shuffled out of the door and closed it behind him.

Denny darted to it and leaned with her back against the rough slabs. She was shaken, yet there was a warm, reassuring glow in her blood. Stebbins, no doubt, had meant only to be friendly—at any rate, she felt she had nothing to fear from a man whom she could so easily put in his place with a word and a look. She would lock the door now to prevent any more surprise visits and then go to bed.

When she turned to do this she discovered that there was neither lock nor any other means of fastening. Heavy stirrups of wood affixed to the logs on either side of the door indicated that a long bar had at some time been used to secure it on the inside; but she could find no bar.

Then she remembered the timber Stebbins had chopped up for firewood. Had he realized what it was when he put the ax to it? She recalled his slanting glance; his hesitation before he demolished it, and her new-found confidence began to ebb.

After putting down the candle, she searched among the sticks of firewood until she found one which was long enough to wedge into the stirrup opposite the swinging edge of the door. It projected only about a foot on either side and did not fit any too well; but the slight projection it afforded brought her a partial sense of security, even though she knew a violent shake or two might dislodge it.

Her preparations for bed consisted only of removing her moccasins. Fully dressed, she crawled into the sleeping bag and lay listening with painful intensity.

In the darkness the cracks in the door slowly took form—long slits of light from the moonlit snow outside. The stillness was profound. Yet a feeling grew upon her that a presence lurked in the silence; a danger crouched in the shadows outside.

At last, unable to endure the uncertainty, she got up and peered through a crack in the door. She saw Stebbins, a black silhouette before the campfire. He was sitting on his sled, his head thrown back and a bottle held against his mouth.

She crawled back into her sleeping bag keenly alive to the fact that Stebbins drunk might not be as easy to handle as Stebbins sober. Though weary to the point of exhaustion, she must somehow keep awake; keep every sense alert for the slightest sound outside.

She never knew just when her tired body overruled her will; but presently her chin dropped to her chest and sleep, like a soft, smothering hand, laid hold of her and dragged her down to oblivion.

She woke with a start, every hair on her head prickling, and sat rigid in the darkness, listening for some noise that had penetrated her sleep, but had now ceased.

There was only stillness and the thumping of her own heart.

She had almost convinced herself that she had been dreaming when it came again—a furtive fumbling on the outside of the door.

Without knowing how she got there, she found herself standing with her body pressed against the barrier. She could feel it gently springing inward. The stick in the wooden stirrup was moving. She gripped it in place and called in a frightened voice, "Stebbins! Is it you?"

Complete stillness answered. After a moment the door again began springing inward.

Fear invaded her. It couldn't be Stebbins or he would have spoken. Some mysterious wilderness thing must be trying to get in.

She was about to scream to the trapper for assistance when, through the openings between the slabs, she caught the reek of rum. She pressed her face to a crack and saw Stebbins standing outside in the moonlight, one palm flat against the door. He gave a slow, cautious push, and paused, inclining his head to listen. Then pushed again.

In his silence, his horrible, mild persistency, was a fearsome quality that froze Denny's blood. Like one in a nightmare she clung to the wobbling length of wood, keeping it locked in its stirrup. "This isn't real," she thought. "This can't be real."

Suddenly all movement ceased. Snow crumbled under shifting feet. But before Denny could catch her breath, the door shook to a sudden terrific impact. She smothered a scream and her heart nearly choked her with its beating, as she realized that Stebbins' patience had vanished and he was hurling his body against the barrier. The stick and hinges held, but in the ensuing stillness she heard a loosened screw drop with a soft plop to the earthen floor.

The tiny sound in the darkness told her that any moment now the man's battering shoulder might burst the door from its fastenings; but with the courage of despair she prepared to fight to the end to keep it upright between herself and the drunken creature rapidly rousing to madness.

The next blow harried the breath from her body. The wood in her hand squirmed like a live thing. The top hinge fell.

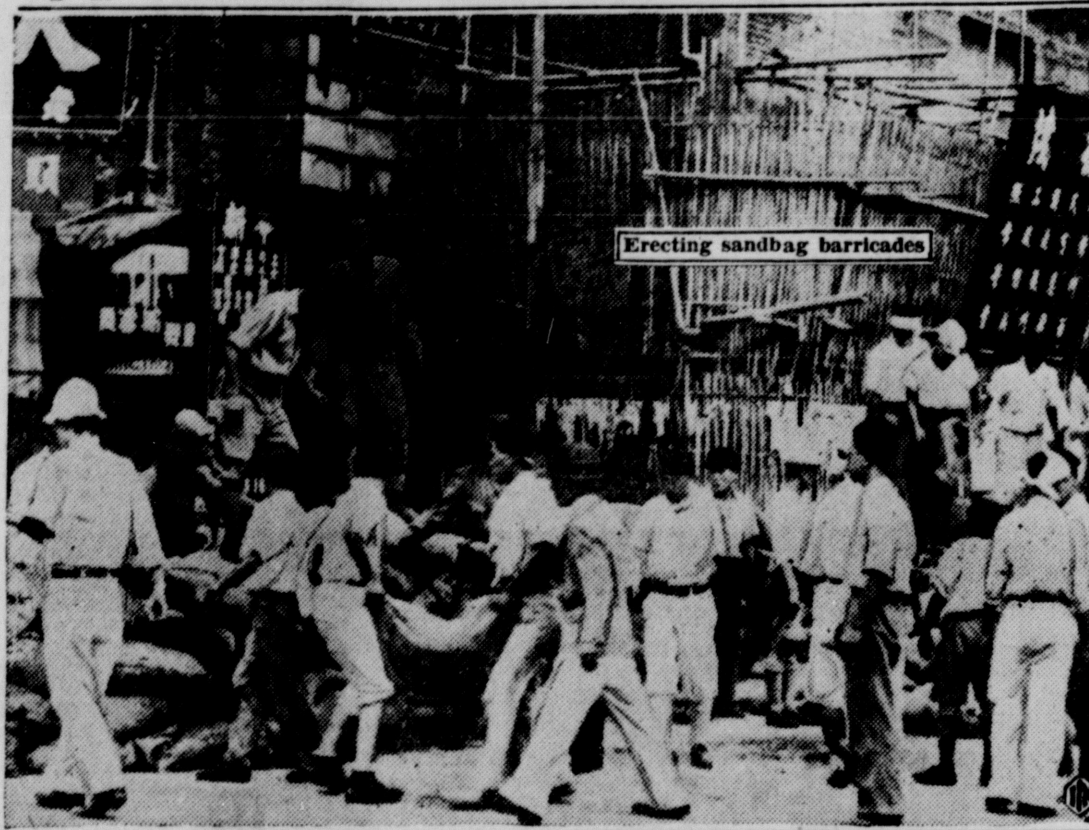

She tried desperately to stiffen

"CAN PEOPLE APPRECIATE THE CHOICER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS?"

A QUESTION FREQUENTLY HEARD...

ANSWER:

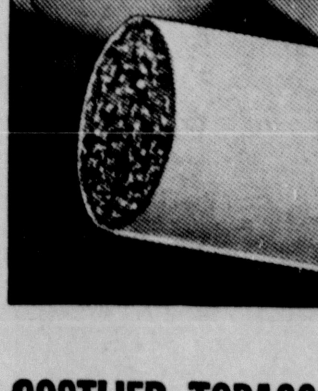

THEY SMOKE MORE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE IN THE WORLD

"Camels went 'round the world with me. I'll bet on them any time," famous round-the-world reporter, Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, says. "With Camels, steady smoking's a steady pleasure."

"I have a long record as a Camel smoker—I've smoked them for many years," Bill Tilden states. "Here's one big point I'd like to make about Camels—they're the cigarette that I've found doesn't upset my nerves."

"To me, Camels mean 'Cheer' with a capital 'C,'" the famous motorboat sportsman, George Reis, says. "I also like Camel's hearty flavor. And I like the 'lift' I get with a Camel after I've been through a tough race."

"Camels go big out our way," says Charlie Belden, boss of the Pitchfork Ranch, Wyoming. He is shown delivering a load of pronghorn antelopes to a zoo, via plane. "Cowboys are great Camel smokers. They like that 'lift' they get out of Camels."

"So many girls at college smoke Camels," says Miss Josephine O'Neill, co-ed. "Mental work often has an effect on digestion. I find that during meals and after, Camels make food seem twice as good."

"I've been enjoying Camels for years," the famous parachute jumper, Joe Crane, begins. "I've smoked enough of them to prove that Camels don't faze your nerves. Flavor? Well, I'd walk a mile for a Camel! You can't beat 'em!"

Men and women respond to the unadorned fact that costlier tobaccos play the most important part in making Camel Cigarettes milder and better

THE deeper you dig into the facts—the more you find that nothing man can do to inferior tobaccos can take the place of good tobaccos to start with. As you'd expect, naturally milder, better-tasting tobaccos cost more to buy. And Camel willingly pays millions more to get them. That's why Camels are different—why they appeal more to men and women in all walks of life—why they're the largest-selling cigarette in America...or in the world!

COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN A MATCHLESS BLEND

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic. The skillful blending of leaf with leaf brings out the full delicate flavor and mildness of these choice tobaccos.
